To whom it may concern

On 7th October 2020 the above-mentioned filly was presented for a breeding soundness examination.

The filly was unshod on all 4 feet and sound at walk.

A clinical examination revealed no clinically significant findings.

The filly's perineal conformation was within normal limits. It is likely the mare will require a Caslick procedure during breeding.

The clinical and rectal ultrasound examination of the filly's reproductive tract was within normal limits. Both ovaries had multiple small-medium sized (10-30mm) follicles.

To the limits of this examination, the mare is cycling normally and would be appropriate to be bred.
